NUMBER 65

2 Students Killed By Police Bullets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police fired into a crowd outside a dormitory at predominantly-Negro Jackson State College in Mississippi early today, killing two black students and bringing to six the number who have died in the current wave of campus unrest.

Nine other persons, all but two of them students, were wounded by the fusillade which followed reports of rock-throwing at passing motorists.

Police said they opened fire after someone fired at them from the building. National Guardsmen were in the area with unloaded weapons but not at the scene of the shooting.

Early last week four students were shot to death in a confrontation with Ohio National Guardsmen at Kent State University during a protest over President Nixon's decision to send U.S. troops into Cambodia.

Witnesses in Jackson today said the policemen confronted a crowd of men standing in front of the dormitory and opened with a 7 to 10 second barrage after hearing a sound like a shot or a firecracker.

Neither police nor the college issued a statement on the shooting or the cause of the rock throwing.

There has been discontent on the campus for some time, with many students claiming too many blacks are sent to Vietnam immediately after graduation.

After the shooting, students screamed at the policemen from windows of other dormitories while students in front of the building dropped to the ground to take cover.

National Guard troops in armored personnel carriers with 30-caliber machine guns on top moved on to the scene on the 3,500-student campus.

Hinds County Coroner B. R. Billock identified the dead as James Earl Green and Phillip L. Gibbs, 21. He said autopsies would be performed.

Another 11 persons were treated for minor injuries after the violence. All were blacks except a highway patrolman who received minor laceration.

One student said, "They said somebody shot but it was just a bottle. It made a popping sound when it hit."

In Athens, Ohio, the president of Ohio University ordered the school closed early today after 1,000 National Guardsmen were ordered into the city following day-long campus disorders.

Police earlier fired tear gas to disperse about 2,000 rock-throwing students at the school while the highway patrol sealed off the southwestern Ohio town of 17,000 people.

An aide to Gov. James A. Rhodes, who ordered the guardsmen onto the Kent State campus last week, said there was no immediate plan to use them at Ohio University.

At the 4,000-student University of Maryland in College Park, National Guardsmen and state policemen fired tear gas and marched shoulder to shoulder Thursday night to clear 5,000 students off U.S. Highway 1.

The new violence came as many striking students around the country mapped plans to move their protests off campus — to streets, factories and legislative chambers.

A nationwide survey showed 14 schools officially closed and the student strike information center at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., reported student strikes at 278 colleges and universities.

The student information center said 27 of the nation's 1,500 educational institutions had strikes Wednesday and 226 Tuesday.

Representatives of striking students from 23 colleges assembled at Yale University in New Haven to decide what direction student strikes should take.

The representatives heard Yale Prof. Kenneth Mill said that campuses be kept open throughout the summer for "political education."

Students at Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., said they were abandoning plans for a national "pause for peace" plan under which workers throughout the nation would halt work for one hour May 21. They said labor and industry didn't appear to be interested.

Girl Early to School Attacked

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 10-year-old girl who arrived early at her school in suburban Wellston Thursday for a breakfast program was attacked by a man, stabbed in the abdomen 10 times and slashed three times on the throat and neck, police reported.

The child, a fourth-grader at Wellston Middle School, was reported in critical condition at St. Louis County Hospital.

Willie Guy Wallace Jr., 25, was charged in warrants with assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

Police said Wallace was identified in a police lineup by two witnesses who saw a man dragging the screaming girl down the steps to the school basement, stabbing her at the same time. When the witnesses approached, the man fled, investigators said.

An off-duty policeman, Joseph Walsh, passed by the school and when he learned what happened, began patrolling the neighborhood. Walsh said he spotted a man with bloodstained clothing and called for assistance.

Wallace was arrested at his home. He denied any knowledge of the attack on the girl.

Israeli Pilots Claim 3 MIGs

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israeli pilots claimed shooting down three Soviet-made Egyptian MIG jets in dogfights over the Suez Canal today.

By Israeli account, two MIG17s were shot down in morning battles over the blocked waterway and a MIG21 shortly after noon.

All three planes were seen falling in Egyptian territory, the military command said here.

The MIG21 had "attempted to interfere" when Israeli planes were on a bombing and staffing mission against Egyptian military targets along the central sector of the canal, a spokesman said.

It was the second Israeli raid of the day and followed two Egyptian strikes.

All Israeli aircraft returned safely, the spokesman said.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Union Electric Co. of St. Louis was to ask the Missouri Public Service Commission today for authority to acquire Missouri Utilities Co. of Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Union Electric proposes to acquire a minimum 83.3 per cent of the company's stock by exchanging 1.1 shares of its stock for each share of Missouri Utilities stock.

The Board of Directors of the Cape Girardeau company has recommended that stockholders approve the merger.

Public Hails Gridder for Flag Defense

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Hundreds of telephone calls, letters and telegrams typified the favorable response from across the United States to a husky San Diego State football star's defense of the flag.

Bill Pierson, 25, a senior marketing student, was walking from class Monday when he spotted antiwar demonstrators lowering the flag to half staff.

Pierson, a 6-foot-3, 200-pound former sailor, raised the flag back to the top of the pole and stood his ground before the 150 campus militants for three hours.

"I was born under that flag," he told them. "I fought for that flag, and I am going to college because of what it stands for." He stayed put although threatened with fire hoses and chemical sprays. "I wouldn't have moved if they had," Pierson said.

Since the incident, he said, he has been overwhelmed with commendations. The college's athletic department reported it had offers of financial help for Pierson if he wished.

Typical of the responses, he said, was one from a woman whose two sons died in Vietnam: "God bless you!"

He joins the New York Jets professional football camp July 14. Pierson is married, and has a 3-year-old daughter.

The American Legion, in a citation, said his comments in defense of the flag "should forever be the watchword of every red-blooded American."

Greeting Home Cheers Nixon

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)—It was 1968 all over again on a miniature scale.

President Nixon, arriving in Florida Thursday night for a working holiday, was greeted by a campaign-type crowd, rather modest in size and lung power but well supplied with tiny American flags and some professionally prepared signboards applauding his Southeast Asia policy.

Perhaps as many as 1,200 turned out to welcome Nixon and wife Pat at the base across Biscayne Bay from their waterfront home here. The base has a population of about 23,000 military men and dependents.

Two of the hand-lettered placards waved at the first family read: "Thanks for Cambodia and our sons' lives." The Key Biscayne greeters also offered an accordion-backed serenade: "God Bless America," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

The entire Nixon family was here: daughters Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon and son-in-law David Eisenhower.

At a meeting of the Sikeston United Fund Thursday afternoon, it was reported all but $1,490 has been collected of the $35,300 goal. Most of the balance will be taken in through payroll savings plans.

To date $31,325 has been disbursed to the eight agencies in the 1970-71 drive. Disbursements made, to the agencies are:

Red Cross, $3,336.88; Boy Scouts, $8,177.50; Girl Scouts, $5,887.38; Salvation Army, $2,500; United Service Organization, $500; Civic Activity Fund, $1,250; City Welfare, $9,300, and Civil Air patrol $500.

Co-chairmen of the drive are Clem Beal and Mrs. Emma Owens.

New officers will be chosen this summer.

His car left the road, struck a sign and four trees, and then overturned. He was treated at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff for cuts and bruises.

Reds Pressure Cambodians As B52s Hit Laos Trails

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam and Viet Cong troops stepped up their military pressure today in Cambodia outside their hard-hit eastern sanctuary area. The main target was the largely untested Cambodian government forces.

U.S. B52s hammered at enemy supply trails and depots in eastern Laos, jammed with war materials kept out of Cambodia by the allied offensive, informed sources said.

But concern mounted in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, over new action by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

Farther northeast, the Viet enemy forces took control of a town across the Mekong River from the important provincial capital of Kompong Cham, 45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, a Cambodian general said. He reported two Cambodian battalions "missing."

Brig. Gen. Phan Moeung, commander of the 1st Military Region, said three Cambodian companies were still fighting north of the town of Tonle Bet but he did not expect them to hold out. It was feared the road to Kompong Cham would be cut.

The majority Democrats — they control the House 106 to 57 — gave the Republicans little chance to enter into the discussion of the appropriation measures. When a Republican happened to get recognition he did not keep the floor long.

He was either ruled out of order or the Democrats used their majority control to stop debate abruptly.

The tactics were called "shabby" and "gag rule" by the minority leader, Rep. R.J. King, R-Clayton.

"While power play oppression has been used many times in the past," King said, "it is shocking to find the House majority leadership enforcing such calloused denial of floor discussion..."

Rep. Earl Sponsler, D-Cabool, said the Republicans were miffed because they were denied an opportunity "to do a little politicking."

House Hands Budget-Trimming Problems Over to Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House handed to the Senate most of the problems of the special session Thursday including the big one of trimming an overfat budget down to anticipated revenue.

But still in the hands of the House when it plans to come back June 1 are three bills: to control abuse of narcotics and drugs, and to extend the merit system to both the Public Service Commission and the Liquor Control Division.

The drug control bill can still be handled before the session must end June 14 but the timing will be close on such a source of controversy.

The two merit system bills face a bloc of opposition from party conscious majority Democrats and appear in real danger of being stranded even though they were recommended by the titular head of the Democratic party in Missouri, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The one to put liquor control under the merit system was advanced on a slim 72-70 margin.

The House defeated two of the governor's recommendations.

One was a bill to help finance the St. Louis Zoo and Art Museum and the science museum in St. Louis County with a tax levied by a new St. Louis Cultural district. The fight over it centered among the St. Louis city and county representatives.

The other would have given county assessors a pay raise under a complicated formula using both county population and assessed valuation. Some House members said it gave their assessors too big a pay boost.

Senators have already expressed dismay at the over spending of the House on the budget bills. The House Appropriations chairman, Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, said the budget was only $3.9 million in general revenue beyond anticipated income.

Most others predicted the shortage would be $20 million or more.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Well there's one thing for certain, the Bootheel does not have to fear the population explosion when we count the loss of population we have experienced the last 10 years.

With Sikeston, Cape Girardeau, and Poplar Bluff the only three cities showing growths of at least small numbers of people for Sikeston and Poplar Bluff. We hope that Cape Girardeau has sense enough to thank heaven for Mark Scully and his college for that will account for a great amount of the Capes growth.

NEEDED: CHARACTER REFORM

These days we are assailed on every side by calls for "reform" - Postal Reform, Drug reform, Social reform, Tax reform, and dozens of others. But one of our compatriots, newspaper writer and columnist Brian Bex, suggested in a recent address reported in the Bloomington, Indiana STAR COURIER, that what we need more than all else is a bit of "character reform."

"We mass produce everything in this country," Mr. Bex told his audience; "everything but character."

"It used to be," he continued, "that when you wanted something, you worked to earn it. Now you stage a riot and get it given to you at someone else's expense."

"If your father or grandfather lost his job, he took whatever work he could get. Now hordes of relief 'clients' refuse a job unless it is to their liking, and they demand the job to be brought to them."

"This nation was built by immigrants who struggled here for opportunity, and would have scorned the false idea of 'something for nothing.' Now it seems to be an almost universal ambition."

"It used to take a lifetime of gruelling work and scrimping for a family or a country to earn a little surplus, a taste of security. Now mobs of so-called 'students' and whole 'emerging nations' demand they be given it, out of your earnings with no effort on their part."

"Have you ever wondered what happened to the America of yesterday?"

Brian Bex offered some positive suggestions. Although many people seem to believe that they can do little or nothing, Mr. Bex insisted that "what each person is capable of doing, and has the ability to do, is substantial." Further, he said, the philosophy of the left (in all its shadings, from Communism to the welfare state) can be successfully fought by a positive philosophy of freedom. "Ideas must be fought with other ideas, not emotions. It is not enough to know what one believes in; it is equally important to know why one holds certain convictions."

We agree with Mr. Bex. Know what you believe. Know why. Accept responsibility. Stand on your own feet and be counted. That's the way a free and open society works. It's called Americanism.

The Colonial said: A woman is always pleased when her husband goes with her on a visit with her parents, and says he enjoyed himself.

If you unintentionally wrong anyone, don't hesitate to explain it frankly. A quarrel that might last for years may be avoided by an explanation. We do not like an apology; we don't like an action that requires an apology; but an explanation is always in order; it is always genteel.

THE DOSSIER SOCIETY

"Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the Government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachments by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding." - Justice Louis Brandeis in dissent, Olmsted vs. U.S. (1928).

The Army of the United States thinks it has good reason to keep tabs on the activities of civilian dissenters. The argument is that it needs to gauge the potential for civil disturbances where the Army might be called out to restore order. To this end, the Army is alleged (Washington Monthly, February 1970) to have used fulltime undercover agents to infiltrate political groups and to have set up a computerized data bank on the political activities of civilian activists.

Civil libertarians in and out of Congress raised enough of a fuss about the Army snooping to get the Pentagon to agree to shut down its Ft. Holabird, Md., data bank on civilians. But the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) plans to go into U.S. District Court in Washington on Wednesday, April 22, for a hearing on a new complaint. It charges that such information is still being collected and stored elsewhere by the Army in violation of the Constitution.

One paradox is that while the ACLU is attacking Army surveillance, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is under White House orders to step up its monitoring of militant left-wing groups and individuals. As explained by anonymous White House aides (New York Times, April 12, 1970), the objective is to find out who potential bomb planters and snipers may be before they endanger others. One side says the increased surveillance actually strengthens safeguards of individual civil liberties. Unless the terrorists are stopped before they can act, the public will "demand that their police start cracking heads." One way or another, the file space for dossiers will continue to grow.

Advertising genius Albert Lasker once said, "Nobody will read a thousand words about a box of matches, but an automobile could require more than a thousand words."

Mr. Lasker's statement offers a guide to the retailer who wonders how big his advertisement should be and how much should be said in advertising copy.

Generally speaking, the more expensive a product is, more the space and words needed to sell or pre-sell the product. Also, the less a prospective consumer knows about the product or a store, more difficult the selling effort.

For this reason, the local newspaper is the only medium which offers the advertiser the opportunity of explaining in full the advantages of making certain types of purchases.

When the consumer contemplates an important investment he will read and study any amount of information. The large newspaper page is the only local medium which can supply a complete reference source to every potential consumer in the community.

For instance, consider a new housing development. The prospective buyer is considering one of the most important purchases of his life. From his standpoint there is no such thing as too much information. He probably needs a map to follow. He wants to know details of housing construction in the area. He looks for a great deal of comparative information. His memory is not capable of handling so many facts. The local newspaper becomes his guide and is retained until he reaches the point of sales.

Judging by what we read, the White House proposal that President Nixon calls the "welfare reform" bill is coming under increasing fire.

As Georgia's Rep. Phil Landrum, member of the Ways and Means Committee, says: "If the public understood this bill, they would oppose it."

The fact is dawning on the people that the plan is not a welfare reform but instead is simply a welfare expansion. To begin with, it would put 15 million more people on welfare rolls. These people would represent 3 million heads of families now working full-time—some with incomes near $8,000.

Meanwhile, both Republicans and Democrats are questioning the bill's feasibility. House Ways and Means Committee members—Al Ullman (D.-Ore.), Omar Burleson (D.-Tex.) and Landrum have entered a vigorous dissent to their committee's endorsement and issued a joint statement: "Virtually no improvement is offered for the administrative tangle that makes the existing welfare program so ineffective."

"In our judgment, the first step in welfare reform should be to make our present system effective for the 10 million Americans already on the welfare rolls, and offer them a real opportunity to lift themselves out of poverty. Only after we have successfully achieved a sound structure should we consider bringing millions more into the system."

The "Oregon Voter" noted that the saddest news of the '60s is a Census Bureau estimate that U.S. population increased about 25 million between 1960 and 1970. There was an estimated increase of 2 million in 1969. If conservationists and all the do-gooders who are so busily taking up the cause of "environmental quality" would stop harrying businessmen and devote their energies to persuading America to hold the line on population, they might have a very beneficial influence. It is too many people who ruin the environment. Too many people who pollute our air and water. Too many people who litter the country with refuse. Too many people whose waste must be disposed of in ever costlier ways. Only through population control can we have a high-quality environment.

There has been feverish activity behind the scenes to arrange emergency weapons, mercenary forces and, possibly, allied troops to prevent a communist takeover of Cambodia.

The U.S. will furnish the weapons, finance the mercenaries and even pick up the bills for any South Vietnamese, South Koreans, Thai or Indonesians who may volunteer to go to the rescue of Lon Nol.

The only limitation, apparently, will be on U.S. personnel. Given the political climate at home, the President has strictly prohibited the use of Americans in the field of Cambodia since July 1.

Quiet preparations have been made, however, to expand the U.S. mission in Phnom Penh. The new arrivals will include intelligence specialists, communications advisers and military men in mufti, who will be available, presumably, to give the Lon Nol government private guidance.

Meanwhile, U.S.-trained, U.S.-financed Cambodian mercenaries have already been rushed to Phnom Penh—minus their American advisers, of course—to help defend the Cambodian capital. Asian allies, including Thailand and Indonesia, have also been sounded out secretly about sending troops to Cambodia in Lon Nol should need them.

The Cambodians have also presented the U.S. with a long shopping list of military needs. This is being handled with great delicacy by the White House because of the outspoken congressional opposition to the U.S. mission in Phnom Penh. The new arrivals will include intelligence specialists, communications advisers and military men in mufti, who will be available, presumably, to give the Lon Nol government private guidance.

The Generation Gap

One reason why people over 50 and those under 30 don't quite connect is that the over-50's were traumatized by growing up during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

In those days, Chicago was bankrupt, families lived on day-old bread at 34 cents a loaf, zoo animals were shot to save money, the family dog in New York City was $2.39 a week (only half of the needy could get it), and one fourth of the state of Mississippi was sold off in a single day's foreclosure actions.

Witnessing such events marks a person with what a book by Caroline Bird called The Invisible Scar. It leaves a person over 50 wary about his money.

Now pension plans, Social Security, and amortized mortgages give us built-in savings. We get to enjoy our savings in our own lifetimes, too. And credit is a workaday tool instead of a desperate last resort.

So today's young people confidently get all kinds of things before they earn them: car, house, baby, every appliance. And they have a good time while their scarred elders cluck in alarm over the cocksure operation. The bills by Congressman Price and Senator Dole would permit the value of an estate for inheritance tax purposes to be set, at the option of the executor, either on the basis of the deceased's costs, or on the basis of the profit of the enterprise as revealed by income tax returns.

Congressman Price cites the hypothetical example of a family-owned cattle ranch that under the present system of appraising at today's inflated values would be assessed at $300,000 leaving the inheriting son liable for $110,500 in taxes, according to his computations.

Using this hypothetical example to further illustrate, the Texas legislator says the actual profit being realized is only $7,500. Thus, using a reasonable factor for determining value, the estate should only be valued at $105,000 which would result in a death tax liability of $22,500.

On top of the Federal death tax, most states also assess a similar tax, but usually the states will follow the Federal pattern.

Operation of the inheritance tax has and continues to create many problems which are probably more middle-class in nature than those of the very wealthy who have learned to use foundations and other loopholes to escape the full weight of the tax laws.

Many claim that because in many states appraisers are paid a percentage of the value of the estate, as well as probate fees being based on this formula, there is an effort to pad the value of the estate. A respondent to the Federation survey in California, a widow with a motel, recently charged that deliberate padding of her husband's estate not only stripped her of all cash, but necessitated borrowing money at high interest rates to keep the motel from being liquidated.

Probably because people only die once, legislators who have in the past sought to correct the death tax situation have experienced difficulty in obtaining mass support.

When he ran in the California primary for the United States Senate, Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, attacked the California system of handing out appointments as inheritance tax appraisers branding it as a particularly vicious example of awarding profitable political patronage plums.

Under the Reagan administration an attempt was made to change the system, but failed to get legislative approval. This failure was registered after the present State Controller Hugh Flournoy requested all estate appraisers voluntarily take an examination to determine their fitness for the position. A substantial number refused to take the test, and of those who did, about half flunked.

The present inheritance tax laws were enacted in the emotion-laden depression years when men were selling apples in the streets at a time when a few heirs and heiresses came into their inheritances which they proceeded to flaunt with worldwide publicity. Thus, the legislation was to prevent this from happening in the future.

But the result has been that the extremely wealthy have developed means of escaping the full impact of the law while the closely-held business and the family farm, the backbone of the middle-class, bears the brunt.

WASHINGTON — Despite President Nixon's pledge to pull all U.S. troops and advisers out of Cambodia by July 1, he has no intention of abandoning the Lon Nol government.

There has been feverish activity behind the scenes to arrange emergency weapons, mercenary forces and, possibly, allied troops to prevent a communist takeover of Cambodia.

The U.S. will furnish the weapons, finance the mercenaries and even pick up the bills for any South Vietnamese, South Koreans, Thai or Indonesians who may volunteer to go to the rescue of Lon Nol.

The only limitation, apparently, will be on U.S. personnel. Given the political climate at home, the President has strictly prohibited the use of Americans in the field of Cambodia since July 1.

Quiet preparations have been made, however, to expand the U.S. mission in Phnom Penh. The new arrivals will include intelligence specialists, communications advisers and military men in mufti, who will be available, presumably, to give the Lon Nol government private guidance.

Meanwhile, U.S.-trained, U.S.-financed Cambodian mercenaries have already been rushed to Phnom Penh—minus their American advisers, of course—to help defend the Cambodian capital. Asian allies, including Thailand and Indonesia, have also been sounded out secretly about sending troops to Cambodia in Lon Nol should need them.

The Cambodians have also presented the U.S. with a long shopping list of military needs. This is being handled with great delicacy by the White House because of the outspoken congressional opposition to kids, a baffling new breed of Joneses.

FRINGE BENEFIT

In our suburban neighborhood we sponsored a charity bazaar and I was driving a carload of neighbors to the big event. The subject of husband-wife arguments came up, and each woman related what happened when she and her mate had words.

"My husband doesn't give me a chance to argue," I said. "Whenever we disagree he walks out of the house and starts in sawing or hammering or pouring concrete."

One of the women in the back seat spoke up. "You must have had some dillies, my dear," she laughed. "I've often wondered how you managed to add a bedroom, a bath, and a patio to your home in a year."

The Greeks did have a work for it—the word was Harpyia, which translates to snatchers.

The Greek word, subsequently Anglicized to Harpies is apparently in the opinion of many Americans synonymous with the inheritance tax collector.

Congressman Robert Price of Texas, author of a bill to drive the Harpies away, is now seeking support of fellow Congressmen to end what has been a major cause of mergers, as well as the liquidation of the family-held farm.

His bill is particularly identical in context with one introduced by Senator Robert Dole of Kansas which was submitted to a nationwide vote by the National Federation of Independent Business with an eighty-three percent majority supporting the bill.

Under present inheritance, or death tax laws, when the principal owner of a family, or closely-held, business approaches the end of his life span, crisis results. Knowing of his death the business will be forced to pay an inheritance tax far in excess of any existing cash position, and often not even in line with its earning record, the usual procedure is to seek a merger to avoid liquidation.

The family head of a family-owned farming operation faces the same situation, inasmuch as today's inflated land and property values are not at all in line with the profitability of the enterprise, whether it be an independent business firm, or a farming operation. The bills by Congressman Price and Senator Dole would permit the value of an estate for inheritance tax purposes to be set, at the option of the executor, either on the basis of the deceased's costs, or on the basis of the profit of the enterprise as revealed by income tax returns.

Johnson, Allen Star

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tall Jerry Johnson surrendered his first two runs of the season Thursday but earned a second triumph in relief for the St. Louis Cardinals the tough way.

The 6-foot-3 right-hander, a starter until this spring, put the brakes on rounding third base during an eighth-inning rally and appeared headed into an inning-ending rundown.

Johnson, however, accelerated to draw a throw home from behind third base and eluded the lunge of Pirate pitcher Duke Walker with a slide for the winning run in an 11-7 game.

The Cardinals, following the tally, erupted for three more runs on two walks, Joe Hague's single and another off-target throw home which failed to nail Joe Torre.

For the afternoon they made the most of eight hits, seven bases on balls off five Pirate pitchers and four errors leading to five unearned runs.

Also aiding were Richie Allen's 12th home run of the year, a solo shot in the sixth inning, and pinch-hitter Vic Davalillo's three-run double in the same frame.

"I got about halfway home and saw the ball pass me and I figured I was dead," said Johnson, who had walked to open the Cardinal eighth and taken second on Dal Maxvill's sacrifice.

"I thought the third base coach (George Kissel) had told me to hold up. If Sanguillen had got the ball any place but in front of the plate he'd have had me."

Johnson, who toiled eight innings in relief for the Cardinals' Tulsa club in the American Association before coming up late in April, was tagged for two Pittsburgh runs in the seventh.

He yielded a single into the hole to 5-4 Fred Patek leading off and two outs later served a pitch that massive Willie Stargell socked out of Busch Stadium.

"He hung a slide up there with him, and you don't do that to too many big guys," Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst remarked.

Johnson then settled down and retired the Pirates in order in the eighth and ninth to run his mark to 2-0. He has worked 23 innings and been touched for only three hits.

"What I find really different about relief is that you've got to be ready so quick," he said.

"It's a matter of attitude," he added. "The important thing right now is keeping my arm ready to pitch."

"I think I've been doing a pretty good job," said Johnson, whose record last year with the Philadelphia Phillies was 6-13.

"Usually I'm the kind of pitcher that takes two or three innings to find a groove, but this is a job I'm glad to do. I'll do anything they ask," he added. "I'll even shine shoes."

STEERING COLUMN

By Bill Brodrick

DARLINGTON, S.C. — It was 3:15 a.m. on Thursday, May 7, 1970, when the kid boarded a Greyhound bus in Tucson, Arizona.

Some 2,200 miles and many sleepless hours later, he got off in Florence, South Carolina, a changeover point located about 10 miles south of here on U.S. 52 and 76.

His name is George Flowers and I met him quite by accident while having breakfast. Myself and several good racing friends were just finishing that last cup of black pitch that some people here refer to as coffee and George asked if he could join us. He had heard us talking about the Rebel 400 Grand National race that would be held that afternoon.

That's when I learned what a real race fan is. George is the kinda guy you like right off the bat. You can't put your finger on it exactly, but he's got something that lets him fit right in. His life hasn't been easy, but he never once complained about anything.

One of twelve children, George left home to be on his own when he was 14. That was four years ago. He's been in Tucson for the last two years. He's been a racing fan for as long as he can remember.

"I remember one time when I was 10 years old I put in a collect call to Richard Petty," said George. "And he accepted the call and talked for a while. Richard's pretty busy now and he usually isn't around to talk anymore. But I still think he's the greatest driver in the world."

"I haven't seen a race since the '68 Rebel 400," continued George. "I left for the West right after that one. I didn't have any money to get in to see the race but I was standing in the parking lot of the motel in Florence where all the drivers were, hoping I could get a ride to the track. A fellow and his girl friend said they would try to sneak me in in the trunk. They were opening all the trunks to see if anybody was trying to get in. Well, when they came to our car the man at the gate just waved it on through. It was just God that helped me get into the race and kept them from opening the trunk. If you want to go to a race bad enough, there's always a way to do it."

George just finished a course in setting stones in rings and such and hopes to get a job in California. He listens to all the races on Los Angeles' KFI radio and follows the results in the newspaper. His wallet contains pictures of every major stock car driver. And there are a few he doesn't particularly care for.

"I don't like Foyt at all," says George. "Ever since he hit Richard (Petty) at Charlotte and put him out of the race I haven't cared for him."

Some people would say George Flowers is one of the little people. But in racing, whether it be fan or participant, there are no little people. It's all the George Flowers scattered throughout this big country of ours that make racing, and all sports, what they are. I gave George a pit pass for the Rebel 400. He never asked for it, but anybody who would ride 2,200 miles on a bus to see a race deserves at least that.

The last time I saw George he was standing in the garage area talking to a race driver. A tall, curly-haired fellow leaning on a blue Plymouth with the number 43 painted on it and the name Richard Petty stitched on his driving suit.

George had planned to catch the 10:30 a.m. Greyhound out of Florence on Sunday morning after the race and begin the long ride back to Tucson. I doubt he was on it. Richard Petty was in a bad wreck during the Rebel 400. He was taken to the hospital in Florence and wasn't released until Sunday afternoon.

George Flowers had a small delay to check on a friend.

Former Morley Star Named TRJC Assistant

POPLAR BLUFF — Appointment of Gary Holland, 32 years old, as assistant basketball coach and instructor in physical education at Three Rivers Junior College, subject to final approval of the Board of Trustees, was announced today by President H. Tudor Westover. Recommendation for approval of his appointment will be submitted to the board at its next meeting May 19.

Holland, former head coach at Southern Baptist College, Walnut Ridge, Ark., has been for the last two years a civilian recreation director for the United States Navy in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

After playing college basketball for three years, Holland coached the freshman team at Arkansas State University in Jonesboro as a graduate assistant in the 1964-65 season. His team that year compiled a record of nine victories and three losses.

He went to Southern Baptist College for the 1965-66 season as assistant coach of basketball and baseball. The next year he became head coach.

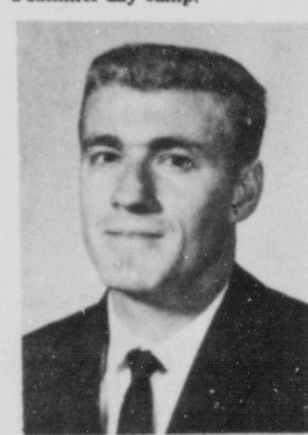

In 1967-68, his final year at Southern Baptist as head coach, his team had a record of 16 victories and 14 defeats. Southern Baptist was Arkansas junior college champion that year. In addition, it won the Phillips county tournament in Arkansas and was awarded the Sportsmanship Trophy in the Mineral Area tournament at Flat River, Mo. The record of Southern Baptist teams the two years Holland was head coach was 28 victories and 32 losses.

Holland played his first year of college basketball at Union University, Jackson, Tenn., on a scholarship. He transferred to Arkansas State at Jonesboro, where he played two years on scholarships.

He received a bachelor of science in education degree at Arkansas State in 1964, and earned a master of science in education degree there in 1965.

He attended high school in Springfield, Mo., and Morley, Mo. He was graduated from Morley High School after his family moved there from Springfield in his junior year. As a civilian recreation director for the Navy, he was responsible for arranging for the recreation of families of Navy Personnel. This included organizing, coaching and supervising basketball, and baseball and football teams for boys, exercise classes for women and general supervision of a youth center for teen-agers and a summer day camp.

Hayti Men Appeal Liquor Decisions

HAYTI — Two Hayti liquor establishment operators, Leo Brown and Herman C. Thompson, whose state liquor licenses were permanently revoked by the Department of Liquor Control recently following a series of hearings on liquor violations, have appealed the decisions of their license revocations to the supervisor of Liquor Control in Jefferson City.

A spokesman for the liquor control department said in accordance with the Missouri Statutes on such an appeal, a complete certified copy of all proceedings of the hearings of the two former licenses were forwarded to the Pemiscot County Circuit Court last Thursday, May 7, for prompt review by the court.

Missouri Statute 311-700 gives high priority to such appeals which, according to the statute, has precedence over all civil action on the court docket. Circuit Clerk Robert Rushing told a Daily Democrat reporter today the transcript had been received and would receive "very high priority" on the court docket for hearing as soon as possible.

Former prosecuting attorney Joe Taylor, now associated with the law firm of Vickery and Taylor in Caruthersville, is representing the two defendants, and made the appeal to the liquor supervisor on behalf of his clients.

In accordance with the statute, any party whose license has been revoked by the liquor control department may file an application for review (appeal) within 10 days after the revocation. The supervisor of liquor control then has 15 days to file a certified copy of the proceedings with the circuit court in the county in which the person or persons making the appeal resides.

Today, Prosecuting Attorney Art Stephenson said he has not received notification to date of the appeal action to the liquor department, adding that such notification would probably come from the liquor department, with whom the appeal was filed.

Thompson, operator of the Club Zanza in Hayti, had his license revoked by the supervisor following hearings on operating a disorderly place and illegally refilling liquor containers. Brown's license was revoked following hearings on numerous charges, which included employing an immoral person, employing a person convicted of a liquor violation and providing false answers on his liquor license application, among others.

Arrest Two For Beating Store Owner

MALDEN — Two 18-year-old Negroes were arrested this week through the combined efforts of three Malden citizens, the Dunklin County Sheriff's Office, the Missouri Highway Patrol and the Malden City Police, after they entered a liquor store in Malden and allegedly clubbed the store operator in the head.

The Dunklin County Sheriff's office said the teenagers, Billy Joe Jones of Clarkton and James Townsend of Malden, went into the Johnny Holder Package Liquor Store in Malden around 5:15 p.m. yesterday and requested an item which was under the counter. When the owner, Johnny Holder, stooped over to get the item they had requested, law officials stated one of the Negroes hit him over the head with a club, and then fled. Nothing was reported taken from the store. Townsend was apprehended by Three Malden citizens on the railroad tracks west of the Malden depot, and Jones was apprehended in Clarkton shortly afterwards by the sheriff's department and highway troopers.

Both men are being held in the Dunklin County Jail, pending charges.

GRAIN SORGHUM OR LATE CORN?

The continued wet weather since the middle of April has caused several farmers to re-evaluate their production plans. Several farmers have indicated they are considering planting grain sorghum in lieu of planting corn this late in the season.

Needless to say, each farmer must base his decision upon his own situation. A decision which is appropriate for one farmer might be inappropriate for another farmer.

There are several highly relevant factors other than yield differences between corn and grain sorghum which should be considered. These other factors could have a greater effect on net profit than a difference in yield between these two crops.

There are three factors which may be disadvantages to planting grain sorghum. If a farmer is planning to participate in the feed grain program, he should check with his local ASCS office to determine what affect planting grain sorghum, in lieu of corn, will have on his feed grain program payments. In some cases, the difference in payments will be substantial.

Another factor which should be considered is the difference between the selling price of corn and grain sorghum. It is not uncommon for the price of grain sorghum to be 15 to 20 percent below the price of corn at harvest time.

The third factor and possibly the most important of the three is marketing. The moisture content of grain sorghum at harvest creates a marketing problem. Some grain elevators cannot and will not handle grain sorghum at any price if the moisture content is above 14% or 15% percent.

If on-the-farm drying facilities are not available, provisions should be made to get the crop dried, if necessary, before it is planted.

Most corn producers are readily aware of the disadvantages of planting corn this late in the season. Late corn simply will not produce as many bushels per acre as corn planted early. The higher temperatures plus the higher incidence of drought normally reduce corn yields significantly when it is planted late.

Although grain sorghum responds to irrigation, it is more drought and heat tolerant than corn.

Date-of-planting studies on corn near Sikeston, Mo., for a 10-year period (1955-1964) showed that corn yields drop rapidly after May 10.

The 10-year average yields for different planting dates were: April 1, 96.9 bu.; April 20, 94.2 bu.; May 10, 89.5 bu.; June 1, 76.5 bu. and June 20, 56.5 bu.

These yield differences reflect primarily the influence of two detrimental factors:

Temperature and Moisture.

Today's farmer must consider another factor which is of major importance. That factor is the Southwestern corn borer.

It is not uncommon for 50 to 100 percent of the plants in a field of late planted corn to be infested with Southwestern corn borer.

Reductions in corn yields caused by these pests depend upon when the infestation occurred and how severe the infestation was.

In 1966 Southwestern and European corn borers reduced yields 27.7 bushels per acre in tests at Portageville, Mo.

The various factors listed above which should be considered before deciding which crop to plant are by no means all of the relevant factors to consider.

Grain sorghum variety selection is just as important, if not more so, than corn variety selection.

Several grain sorghum producers will not plant a grain sorghum variety if it isn't bird resistant.

Your local University Extension Center has copies of the Grain Sorghum Yields Trials publication.

It is also important to consider the open-headedness of a grain sorghum variety. Insects are less of a problem in open-headed varieties than those with compact heads.

Corn producers considering planting grain sorghum should determine to the best of their ability which crop offers them the highest profit potential.

They should also determine if they can produce, harvest and market the crop.

Farmers who have never produced grain sorghum may want to obtain a copy of a publication entitled "A Grain Sorghum Production Guide" from their University Extension Center.

Folk wisdom prescribes that oysters should be eaten only during months which have an "r" in their names. The World Almanac notes that the "r" rule, first recorded in William Harrison's "Descriptions of England," 1577, probably originated from the observation that during the summer months (which have no "r" in their spelling) oysters spawn and are less flavorful. But they can be eaten without any danger to health.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white silk worsted linen fashioned with high-cuffed neckline etched with venise lace motifs. Long tapered sleeves were set in the darted bodice. The motifs were repeated on the sleeves and in the sweep train that fell from the shoulders. She wore a half moon headpiece of orange blossoms secured to a tiered veil of bridal illusion.

Mrs. Rosemary Walker at the organ played the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Marla Jo Smith in two songs, "More" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Linda Watkins, sister of the bride, Sikeston, was the matron of honor. Mrs. Carol Rampley, niece of the bride, Bell City, and Miss Linda Bess of Bloomfield were the bridesmaids.

Stanley Mashek, Advance, was the best man. Don Abner of Bell City and Dennis Long of Bell City were the groomsmen.

Candlelighters were Miss Karen Scherffius, niece of the bride, Bell City, and Miss Joan Hoosier of Bell City.

Fashion School Director Says:

No Need to Look to Paris, Talent Is Here

THE LONG, THE SHORT AND EVERYWHERE IN BETWEEN . . . Student designers at the Traphagen School of Fashion prefer to work in a variety of lengths, although most daytime designs for their spring fashion show fall two to four inches above the knee. NEW YORK (AP) — Pausing in her perusal of her students' fashion sketches, Wanda Wdowka, recently named director of the Traphagen School of Fashion, thought back to the period some 20-odd years ago when she, herself, was a student at the school.

"In my day, we always thought of starting from the bottom up and easing into the fashion field," said the attractive brown-ette. "Nowadays they don't want to start by picking up pins, or by being an assistant to some assistant to some assistant. These students think they can start at the top — and some of them can. The young look in fashion has given the young people an opportunity to start at higher positions. Why, right after graduation, some immediately land jobs as full-fledged designers."

Miss Wdowka's 20-year-career in the fashion industry has included such diverse positions as assistant designer, fashion stylist, assistant editor, fashion design and commercial-art teacher and most recently assistant director of the school. She believes overall today's students have more determination, more drive, more talent and are more alert than the students of 20 or 30 years ago.

"Talent, both amateur and professional, is really here, in this age group, in this country," she continued. "It's getting so that there's no need to go to Paris for inspiration. I don't know if we'll ever divorce ourselves from Paris couture, but the talent is here."

She pointed with pride to the fact that Traphagen students have great stitch detail and a surprise pocket on full sleeves, (3) Summer-up in two great ways—a bikini topped by a matching maxi, (4) This smooth clipped fake fur winter day into evening coat goes most anywhere, (5) The "purist" look in children's fashion—white is the catalyst in this ensemble, banding and tabbing the simple A-line dress and collarless midi-coat.

always been several years ahead of jersey midi length dress with maxi Paris couture. "Three years ago, length panels, trimmed with browns, beiges, greens, Violet, lilac and purple appear in sportswear through eveningwear.

Miss Wdowka is very impressed with the unusual ways in which the students are using fabrics. "Over 100 pieces of fabric, ranging from cotton synthetics to piles to brocade, to jersey, are used in the show and in many innovative ways. Fake fur-like fabrics predominate but even here the fabric turns up in unusual combinations, for instance, with nailhead trim, or rhinestones or a plastic-look-like-leather trim," she explained. We were particularly attracted to a fantastic ball gown with huge sheer sleeves which featured the look of broadtail.

Knits, ranging from thin body-clinging silk-look jerseys to a slinky copper-colored jumpsuit trimmed in silver, wood and copper beading, were especially popular among the students. Pleats and tucks, notably free-wheeling knife pleats teamed with long torso tops in one dress," she said, pointing to a sketch for an apricot matte darts' fancy.

According to Miss Wdowka, the show's conversation piece is the return of shoulder pads. "I don't know whether the general public will accept them, but stranger things have happened. Look, when Ethel Traphagen came out with pants she was the first she didn't know if they'd be accepted. Now look," says the school's director enthusiastically.

Panels of lace accented the back of the A-line skirt which flowed to a chapel length wattle train. Organza and lace petals and organza flowers formed her headpiece from which flowed a chapel-length veil. Her bridal bouquet was of white and pink carnations with white satin streamers.

Marvel at Sexy, Soft Sleepwear

In years past a woman didn't have to be a witch, an astrologer, or a psychic to predict the gifts her man would bestow upon her on Mother's Day. There'd be the traditional candy and/or flowers. And the even more traditional lingerie.

"Oh, what a big surprise," she'd say as she opened the box containing the anticipated bed jacket, serviceable housecoat or wear-it-once-and-put-it-away sexy negligee. Oh well, better a personal gift than a household appliance, she'd say to herself as she placed the sixth bed jacket in the same number of years in a storage closet.

But you couldn't blame her man for showing so little imagination. There just was so little to choose from in the lingerie field.

Not today. The look of ready-to-wear which has invaded sleepwear has brought with it enough variety so that even the most unimaginative man can encounter no difficulty in finding something special for his someone special.

Is she young? Most likely — if not in chronological age, then in spirit. Her man will show he's aware of her youth by choosing a romantic pinafore or the little-girl look of a peasant-inspired sleep gown that could easily pass as a dress. The full bloused sleeves and smocking that circles the waist adds to the streetwear illusion of the peasant gown.

The practical, sporty, no-lace-for-me woman might like a poncho sleepgown. It'd be just as at home on the beach as it is on the bed. Clingy rompers and smooth, simple jumpsuits also feature the play by day and sleep by night look.

Is the gal of his dreams undecided about going midi? Why not let her try this new length at home? The flowing midi nightgown may lead to her adopting an entire midi wardrobe.

Women who definitely have said no to the midi may have difficulty choosing between the mini and maxi length nightgowns. Let her enjoy the best of both worlds in a mini-maxi sleep set. In one duo, the inky, slinky black maxi covers the most mini-ish of their own fashions.

Black or white with a few pastel shades in between no longer accurately describes the sleepwear scene. Sunny yellow, burnt orange, fiery red, and the wildest of prints all cry out for recognition. Lilac, mauve, and amethyst in dusty colors of the '30s are also very popular. Tanned bodies will look great in all of the pretty skin tones in fleshy variations... pale honey, beiges that deepen to caramel, butterscotch and ginger. And for the gal who prefers pastels, there are the soft prints.

Fabrics are soft and sexy with lots of simple crepes, voiles, ribbed nylons, knits, chiffons and terries. Soft and supple sleepwear fabrics drape, cling and swing to capture the body-shaping mood of today. New on the fabric scene is a light and airy nylon crepe, which has the look and feel of luxurious silk crepe. The crepe pebbling of Enka Crepeset nylon is built into the yarn itself so the fabric never falls flat against the skin, allowing air to circulate freely underneath.

Overall, sleepwear for spring and summer looks backward to the glamorous '30s and straight ahead to the long, lean look of the '70s. But anywhere you choose to land, there's a special look for the now generation Mom.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Nearly three years ago, a friend asked Melanie Semar if she'd be interested in going to work at a gasoline service station.

VERSATILE LINGERIE... Gone are the days of unimaginative lingerie; now lady can select a different type of sleepwear to suit her every mood. (Left) Feeling little-girlish? Try this peasant-inspired gown, which could easily pass as a dress. (Center) Mistee's mini-maxi sleep set takes in the best of both worlds. (Right) Kayser brings the long jumpsuit look to the boudoir, in a soft-pared down sleep culotte with delicate lacy trim. The Enka Crepeset fabric used in all three fashions will wash and dry, pack for travel or lounge at home with equal ease.

Designers Choose Casual Coiffures

By AP NEWSFEATURES

Spontaneous and unrestricted is the coiffure message most American couture designers believe in for spring 1970.

Geoffrey Beene, Bill Blass, Stan Herman, Luba and Chester Weinberg all favor the slightly tousled look of calculated casual. And they prefer hair that moves away from the face.

Natural is the word these designers stress in describing hair-styles they want to see topping their own fashions.

Geoffrey Beene says he likes the look of longer hair that hangs softly to the shoulders and curves gently at the neck. To top some of his evening dresses, he chooses the upsweep.

Stan Herman wants his look at the top to be "natural and undone with a sort of artful disarray."

Yet no matter how undone it looks, softer styling or tumble-at-the-top is not a hairstyle that readily drops into winsome waves.

Adaptations for spring depend heavily on hairpieces to provide the extra height, length and versatility. Extra hair also eases the switch from daytime to evening fashion.

In their seventh annual seasonal match of coiffures with designer fashions, Helene Curtis used wiglets and falls in free-form shapes, almost always starting with hair drawn gently away from the face. Fall-where-they-may curls, loose waves, and tendrils take the place of last season's precision turning. The pouff may appear in organized disarray, and falls give enormous latitude in providing on-again, off-again long hair.

LOOK OF LUBA... For spring 1970, Luba favors a long, lean, versatile style. The pants suit is blue jersey; its high neck is set off by a Victorian "dog collar." To top his fashions, Luba likes a hairstyle of calculated casual. Helene Curtis carries it out with loosely braided strands, looped and held tightly to the head.

STILL A STAR, Ingrid Bergman carries flowers on arrival in the United States. She is seen here at New York's Kennedy Airport.

Is Youth's Cause Clouded With Established Lies?

AMERICA'S YOUTH is one of the hardest fighting revolutionary bodies in the world today. When united they can literally move mountains of change and excavate valleys of outdated opinions.

Too often the older generation attacks the youth of America for their irrational approaches to problems and their rebellious methods of change. One cannot say that America has changed a great deal from what it was before the youth movement started, but many minds have been changed and numerous eyes have been opened. To be brief, the older generation is becoming more and more sympathetic to youth's cause.

But America's youth are having trouble seeing the forest for the trees. Their goals are shrouded with a cloud of established lies pervaded by the older generation; lies that aren't meant as such, but when looked at carefully, are no better.

The lies may be possibly more correctly described if referred to as disillusionments or archaic dogmas, but the refusal of the older generation to allow the reversal of those ideas is just what youth is fighting against.

Most adults try to curb the young people's urge to achieve change through demonstration, whether quiet or otherwise, when they don't realize the youth of today are looking for a cause to fight for and something to believe in and call their own. And the older generation is trying to prevent this free expression of the youth's conviction in its cause.

Disillusionment of the youth is taking place in several ways. One is the dispute on whether the 18-year old has the right to vote or not. The sages of America freedom maintain that young people under the age of 21 are not responsible enough to vote when they know full well that most people over 70 have much less responsibility than the young.

Maybe they also fail to realize that although our Constitution is one of the greatest documents on earth, it was written almost two hundred years ago and parts of it can become outdated. And the minimum

Most of those 18-year old "kids" are much more informed on the qualifications, beliefs, policies, and current affairs surrounding a particular candidate, when all some dedicated Republicans and Democrats use as their guidebook is an arbitrary and controversial device referred to as "politics".

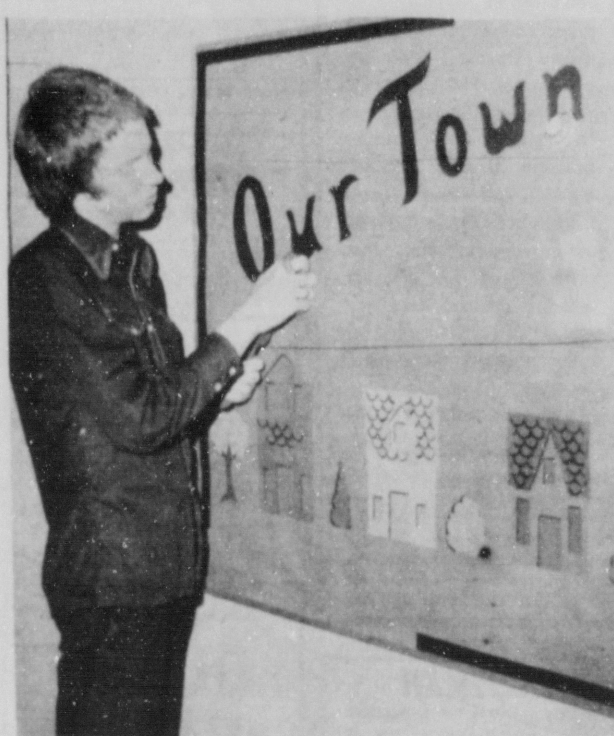

They also fail to see that 18-year-olds are much more mature now than they were 10 or 20 years ago. And they are not that way because young people have changed, but rather because life itself has changed. It's a very simple fact: Young people are growing up a great deal faster.

The young people want to know, "WHAT IS TRUTH?"

WHAT IS TRUTH when a boy of 18 gives his life in Vietnam for a country that doesn't give him credit for enough responsibility to choose the men who are supposed to intelligently run our country? Ask the 50,000 men who have died in that forsaken and desolate war. Ask them and see if it makes any sense. Ask them and see if they still care.

The young people are moving and America and the older generation had better move with them or they'll be passed by and run over. Folk singer Johnny Cash couldn't have more effectively described the momentum of the youth, "This whole world's waking to a new born day and I solemnly swear that it'll be their way."

Crites, O'Guinn Receive Superior Ratings At State

Superior ratings were awarded to senior Lee Crites and junior Barbara O'Guinn at the state speech contest held in Columbia on May 1.

Lee was given the second highest rating for his dramatic reading of Henric Ibsen's powerful play "Enemy of the People."

Barbara received a superior rating for poetry reading. Her selections were from poems by Robinson Jeffers. They included "Where I?", "The Answer", and "No Resurrection."

Ratings at Columbia started at inferior, below average, average, superior, and excellent. Both Lee and Barbara won the privilege of attending the state speech contest at Cape on April 18.

At Cape they were judged by professionals in their field and received very high ratings from all their judges. Later in the day it was announced that they would represent Sikeston at Columbia.

Accompanying Lee and Barbara to Columbia was Miss Barbara Brown, dramatics teacher and English I instructor at SHS.

Lee, Barbara, and Miss Brown left Sikeston on the preceding Thursday and arrived at Columbia later that day.

On Friday, May 1, they went before the judges and gave their readings. After an entire day of speech events, the students returned to Sikeston and awaited the news of their ratings.

Last week the ratings arrived and Lee and Barbara were presented with a certificate of honor for receiving a superior rating.

Commencement Invitations Are Here

Announcements for the commencement exercises arrived at the Daily Sikeston Standard last Thursday. Seniors should now begin to make their purchases, so that all announcements can be in the mail two weeks before commencement.

Announcements cost 18 cents each, and engraved name cards could be ordered in lots of 100 or 200.

8:30 Band Will Present Pop Concert

Sikeston high school will present a showing of the year's work tonight at the annual open house.

Immediately following open house the 8:30 band will give a pop concert. The band will be directed by Ron Williams.

Themes, posters, poems, and special projects will be displayed in the English department.

Journalists will present pictures of scenes and personalities around school as well as this year's Barkers and samples of work done on the Growler.

In the science department many various projects will draw the interest of visitors. The amazing world of science will be revealed in displays set up in the biology, chemistry, and physical science rooms.

Social studies departments will exhibit work from each of the different areas of current history, American history, world history, and geography.

Classes in the vocational building will have for public observation exhibits of each individual section of the department.

Secretarial classes will display typing notebooks, shorthand transcriptions, and awards that have been earned by the students for outstanding skills in typing and shorthand.

Cosmetology will be open for viewers to visit and see extensive programs setup for the members of the class.

Graphic arts, building trades, and design drawing will feature examples of printing, projects and drawings prepared by class members.

Open house is primarily to give the public a chance to see the extraordinary facilities and teaching techniques of the school. It also gives parents and teachers an opportunity to discuss the students' work and methods of improving the school system.

A calendar of events involving seniors for this final month of high school is followed by a list of all the members of the SENIOR CLASS OF 1970.

Girls from secretarial training classes are responsible for the information booklets that were passed out to graduating seniors during the homeroom period last Tuesday.

The cover of these booklets has high school emblems on it such as a Red Pepper emblem, choir emblem, football player, SHS, and a graduation cap with a "70 in the center."

Next come the four class officers and senior class sponsors.

These booklets are very handy besides being a nice memory for graduating seniors.

Opening the booklet, the first page sports the school song "The Red and the Black."

Only 13 Days To Go...

Optimism Can Influence One's Outlook On Life

THE TRUE MEASURE OF ONE'S SUCCESS may very well depend on his outlook on life, his attitude toward others and himself, and how high he sets his goals.

Let's look at the pessimist, the one who looks down instead of up. He may not realize he is a pessimist because he can't open his mind or his eyes wide enough to see a contrast in attitudes. This person criticizes others in a way that is not constructive and often painful, looking only to tear down, and taking particular care not to find anything good about the other person.

Not only does he knock others, but himself as well. He has no confidence in what he does or what he can do. His goals are not set high enough even to be considered goals, for if one's goal is totally attainable and no more achievement can be made, how much is really gained? One must always be reaching in order to feel that he can better himself. Looking down in the two above mentioned areas automatically causes a pessimistic outlook on life in general.

Now let's contrast the pessimist with the optimist. He looks for the good in people, and when he has some criticism he is sincere about it and conveys it in a way that may be beneficial and not painful.

He applies this criticism to himself, not in a cutting manner, but in a way that it can be used to make himself a better person. He looks at himself as an individual who cannot be compared in any general way to any other individual.

He realizes that everyone has different ideas, different good assets, and different faults as well. The optimist sets his goals high, and he works for them in everything he does. This way he is achieving all the while that he is teaching.

Self-confidence, caring, and a desire to get everything worthwhile out of life, gives him sound reason to have his cheerful outlook on life. He is honestly proud to be alive.

It all comes down to the simple fact that if you want to make the most out of your life, you will. If you want to attain goals and enjoy reaching for them, you will. If you want to look up, not down, you will.

It's your mind, make it up.

Congressmen

Asked to Spend

Time on Campus

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran House member has called on his colleagues to spend one weekend each month on college campuses to listen to what the nation's students are saying.

Rep. James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., has written all members of Congress outlining his idea for "Operation Dialogue" and has asked every college in the nation if it would like to participate.

An aide said it's too early to chart the response but Wright's hope is that a deliberately created dialogue would bring "neither fawning adulation nor hostile confrontation" but a mutual education.

Wright, 47, suggested that 60 or 70 members, from both parties and all political shadings, volunteer one weekend each month for assignment to colleges requesting an elected official's presence.

"Congressmen would have to agree to go wherever they are invited, not just where they could get publicity or political mileage," the Texan said.

"They'd have to be willing to listen as well as talk. Students would have to accept a true cross-section of lawmakers, not just those eager to confirm them in their preconceived ideas."

"The purpose would be intelligent, sensible discussion, free of self-righteous preaching, juvenile obscenities or attempts by either to embarrass the other," he said, with the goal being "mutual education, not intimidation."

AWARD OF MERIT of National Safety Council for 1969 was presented to District 10 of Missouri State Highway Department, W. H. Shaw, engineer, right, accepts the plaque from Highway Commission Chairman Jack Stapleton Sr. The annual award is in recognition of outstanding safety record of district 10, who has 585 employees, who worked 1,066,705 man-hours with nine lost time accidents over a 7,163 square mile area.

Poplar Bluff Schools Tense

POPLAR BLUFF — Thirty-six students at Poplar Bluff Senior High School have been suspended temporarily as a result of what was described as a gang fight Wednesday morning in front of the new gymnasium before school opened.

Jim Engelhart, high school principal, described the situation as "definitely racial." Engelhart said the school atmosphere was still tense, with about 350 students absent this morning.

Many students have used the current situation to stay out of school, telling their parents classes have been suspended. The remainder of the absentees are attributed to parents refusing to permit their children to attend, Engelhart said. The normal number of absentees would be 80 or 85, the principal said.

No violence was reported this morning at either Senior or Junior high schools, except for some "shoving" in hallways. Engelhart said the students suspended Wednesday were about equally divided between Negro and white. He said the juniors and seniors involved Wednesday, accompanied by their parents, will be required to attend a conference with school administrators Friday. He said the freshmen and sophomores will have a similar conference Monday.

The gang fight involved about 20 students shortly before classes opened Wednesday morning. Some weapons, including a tire tool and a knife, were confiscated by school officials who broke up the disturbance.

The only other violent incident reported Wednesday involved two girls students, one a Negro and the other white, who scuffled in a covered walkway between buildings B and C, Engelhart said today.

Police were summoned Wednesday morning when the fight broke out, but the disturbance was calmed by Engelhart and other teachers by the time officers arrived. Students gathered in groups on the campus periodically throughout the school day — when they had free hours and at lunchtime — but the only exchanges reported were verbal.

Several non-students, including recent PBHS graduates and some Three Rivers Junior College students, who were frequenting the campus Wednesday, left the premise when requested to do so by school officials and police.

Kenny Scott, 19, who graduated from the high school in 1969, was admitted to Lucy Lee Hospital Tuesday evening after he was involved in a fight. A hospital spokesman today reported Scott was in good condition and was being treated for a broken jaw and broken nose.

Scott's father, Junior Scott, said his son refused to tell him where the fight occurred or who he was fighting with, except to say that his opponent was Negro.

School officials said that Wednesday's disturbance at the High School apparently was an outgrowth of the Scott fight the night before. The gang fight was described as a pitched battle.

School Superintendent Fred Morrow, who went to Murray, Kr., Wednesday morning after the fighting erupted at the high school, said this morning that the "situation is about to quiet down."

Morrow, who said the interviewed prospective teachers at Murray along with Vencil Wilson, assistant superintendent for elementary education, said: "I'll assure the public that the situation will settle down. We'll

Newspaper Edition

Destroyed by Fire

SMITHLAND, Ky. — The entire edition of the weekly Livingston Ledger, was destroyed by fire Thursday between 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

The editor, Mrs. Judy Magee, Wickliffe, has the weekly edition printed at the Sikeston Standard Plant.

The paper mail sacks, containing more than 2,000 copies, had been delivered by the manager of the Ledger on the back porch loading platform at the Smithland Post Office shortly after arriving from Sikeston.

It has not been determined how the papers caught fire. An investigation is being made by a postal inspector.

The Ledger management returned early today and had the edition reprinted in the Sikeston office.

First Political Use

The first use of the telegraph in politics was on May 29, 1844, when news was flashed to Washington from Baltimore that James Polk had been nominated for the presidency on the Democratic ticket.

State Inquiry Sought in Voting

CHARLESTON — Mrs. Robert Yates, candidate for Republican committeewoman from Tywappity township, said today she plans to ask the Missouri Attorney General to look into alleged irregularities in absentee balloting during the April 7 state, city and school elections in Mississippi County.

Mrs. Yates said members of the Republican party have conducted an investigation into the way absentee ballots were handled after they were mailed to voters by the proper authorities.

She said the investigation turned up evidence, supported by affidavits, that the absentee voters did not mark the ballots in the presence of a notary, as required by law, and further, that at least one notary public signed the required affidavit on the ballot envelopes without actually witnessing the voters' signatures.

Mrs. Yates said her evidence has been turned over to Prosecuting Attorney Roderic Ashby, who allegedly informed her that he had obtained affidavits from the same voters, indicating that the persons who had signed Mrs. Yates' affidavits did so without understanding the contents of those documents.

On this ground, Mrs. Yates said, Ashby told her he did not intend to prosecute the election law.

Mrs. Yates said a member of the Attorney General's staff had informed her the case could not be referred to the State official until the local authorities declined to take action. Since that has now happened, Mrs. Yates said, the matter will be turned over to the Attorney General.
